

Master of Oral Health Sciences with a Path to the DMD Program

Temple Dental is expanding its MSc in Oral Health Science Program to offer either a standalone program or a program that leads to preferred admission in its prestigious and highly clinical 4-year DMD program.

International dentists who meet the admission requirements can be considered for the 2- or 3- year advanced standing DMD program.

Students without a dental degree can opt to enroll in a formal Dental Assisting training program, for an extra fee, and the chance to become certified by challenging the Dental Assisting National Board Examination (DANB).

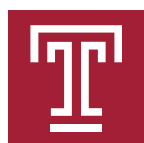

A research project is required for completion of the MSc program. The school offers unique research opportunities led by innovative researchers
